THE SERIES

RAISING QUAMINA

Creator of a seven-season, 44-episode prestige television series chronicling the inherited defiance, systemic targeting, exile, incarceration, and moral reclamation of Duane Alfred Quamina—where the 1823 Demerara rebellion lives again in the modern struggle for authorship, sovereignty, and justice.

Based on the life and writings of Duane Alfred Quamina.

ABOUT THE CREATOR

Duane Alfred Quamina is a creator, author, educator, and ordained minister whose work lives at the intersection of legacy, institutional power, identity, and transformation.

He is the founder of Quamina Legacy Press and the architect of Raising Quamina, a multi-platform intellectual property that includes a memoir, cinematic audiobook, original music, and a seven-season, 44-episode prestige television series in development.

His life journey — spanning military service, international imprisonment, federal prosecution, legal exoneration battles, and his present-day work educating and mentoring youth — forms the foundation of a body of work dedicated to reclaiming narrative sovereignty and transforming lived experience into structured pathways for the next generation.

Through Project C.H.A.N.G.E., I Have A Dream Home, and national speaking engagements, Quamina teaches leadership, literacy, identity, and critical thinking as tools for personal and community transformation.

Logline

A son of African resistance inherits a legacy shaped by surveillance, statelessness, and institutional power — and transforms it into a mission to educate the next generation.

Series Synopsis

Raising Quamina is a generational television saga that begins with the 1823 rebellion of Quamina Gladstone and converges in the modern-day life of Duane Quamina — a journey shaped by federal targeting, international imprisonment, legal warfare, and ultimate transformation through education.

Told across forty-four one-hour episodes, the series explores:

- Ancestral legacy and identity
- The psychological architecture of surveillance
- The collision between community power and institutional control

- Statelessness and sovereignty of mind
- The reclamation of narrative through education
